The Developmental, Psychological and Medical Effects on Drug Exposed Children

This class is for caretakers of children who have been exposed to illegal drugs or the abuse of prescription drugs. Children may have been exposed during pregnancy or they may have been affected by their parents’ drug use, either from direct exposure to the drug use or from the effects that the drug use can have on a parent’s ability to care for their children. This class will review the possible effects that drug exposure can have on children’s health, development, and behaviors. Child care and snacks will be provided.
